

Guiding Concepts of Health Promotion and Disease Prevention

Setting Approach / Living Environment Approach - Table 1

Source: <http://www.leitbegriffe-en.bzga.de/alphabetical-index/setting-approach-living-environment-approach/>

	Health promotion for socially disadvantaged	Towns and cities for health	Health-promoting schools	Health-promoting workplaces	Health-promoting hospitals	Regions for health	Health-promoting colleges and universities
Underlying program	Co-operation declaration: "National co-operation for health promotion among the socially disadvantaged"	Milan Declaration	Recommendation of the Council of Europe (1988), Thessaloniki Resolution	Luxembourg Declaration	Budapest Declaration	Regions for Health in Europe	Health Promotion Universities
Year of issue	2003	1990	1997	1997	1991	1992	1998
Issuing organization	Cooperating Alliance (BZgA, Bundes- und Landesvereinigung für Gesundheit, etc.)	WHO	WHO, Council of Europe	WHO, European Network for Workplace Health Promotion	WHO	WHO	WHO
Network	53 partner organizations	'Healthy Cities' network	No German network	German network of workplace health promotion	German network of health-promoting hospitals		No formal network, 'health promotion universities' working group
Scope in Germany	Ca. 2000 projects	60 member towns and cities	App. 500 schools in the last BLK pilot scheme OPUS	1000 individuals (representing organizations and networks)	65 hospitals	2 regions: North Rhine Westphalia and Lower Saxony	250 interested members from 80 universities and colleges
Co-ordinated by	'Gesundheit Berlin-Brandenburg e.V.' office	'Healthy Cities' secretariat; Münster Public Health Dept.	No formal co-ordination in Germany	Network office at the BKK, Essen	Network secretariat, Berlin	Regions for Health network, secretariat in Sicily, offices in Germany	Lower Saxony state association for health

Table 1. Overview of established settings approaches in Germany, expanded and updated illustration based on Altgeld (2004).